

WOMEN HEAR FIRST LADY

Snapped just before she addressed the Women's Auxiliary, gracious Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt chats with Rose Schiderman, national director of the auxiliary and Alice Neeviles, secretary-treasurer of the National Maritime Union auxiliary (left) the only Negro woman on the national board.

FIRST LADY CONFAB SPEAKER

— Snapped as she leaves the convention hall after addressing delegates to the CIO's Sixth Constitution Convention in Philadelphia, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, America's gracious First Lady, smiles broadly for cameraman. On the left is David McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the United Steelworkers. BEE Editor, Olive M. Diggs, who covered the week-long proceedings, is on Mrs. Roosevelt's right.
